we had a guest speaker last week at church (the pastor was off to celebrate his anniversary) and we talked about cracked pots. we were told to tell the people on either side of us that they were "a cracked pot" and then to tell them that "it's ok, God will use you anyway"! the speaker also told the story about a Chinese woman and her jars of water. i think i've heard this before (and had forgotten) but it is a lovely illustration of one way that God uses cracked pots. it seems that a lady carried water daily to her house from a communal well. she had two pots; one a beautiful jar and the other one full of cracks. every day she got home with only one and a half jars of water because the cracked jar leaked. still she always filled both jars as usual. the cracked jar told her that he was sorry and he was ashamed of himself for losing so much of her water every day. the lady told him that she had beautiful flowers along the path to her house because they got watered every day!

we were also reminded that we let the light of Christ shine through us more easily through the cracks in us! wow! i got to thinking that i didn't start out "cracked". when i was born, i was perfect just how God had intended. Throughout my life, i got cracks from others and cracks from things i did. the beautiful and exciting thing is: i can serve a purpose just as i am!

i tried a recipe that i've been meaning to try for a long time:

Chicken and Tomato Rice Soup

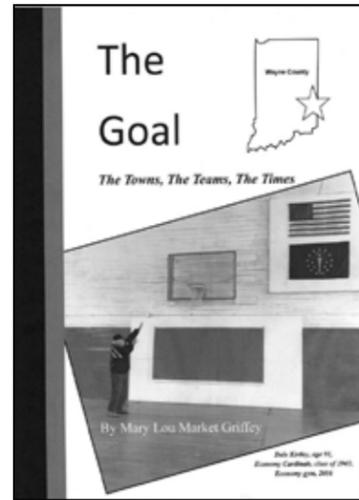

- 1 T. olive oil
- 2 chicken breasts, cut into bite-size pieces
- 1 onion, finely chopped
- 3 carrots, cut in 1/4" slices
- 2 ribs celery, cut in 1/4" slices
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 c. brown rice
- 1 (28oz.) can diced tomatoes
- 1 1/2 t. salt
- freshly ground black pepper

Heat oil in a large pot; brown chicken pieces seasoned with salt & pepper. add next five ingredients and saute another 2 to 3 minutes. Stir in rice, stock, tomatoes & salt and pepper. Bring to boil, reduce heat, cover and simmer for 25 - 30 minutes.

Serves 8.

No. 1 seeds are a good bet to make the Final Four.

Since the NCAA began seeding teams in 1979, at least one No. 1 seed has made the Final Four every year except for 1980, 2006 and 2011. But all four No 1 seeds have only advanced once, when Kansas, Memphis, North Carolina and UCLA pulled off the feat in 2008.

A No. 16 seed has never beaten a No. 1 seed.

Since the tournament expanded to 64 teams in 1985, No. 16 seeds have lost all 112 times they have played No. 1 seeds. Most have gotten blown out, but a few have come tantalizingly close to victory. In 1989, for example, Princeton lost 50-49 to the Alonzo Mourning-led Georgetown Hoyas when a last-second shot fell short.

Ask Lester P.

Here's your chance to get your questions answered from an expert. Or, should we say, the closest thing we could get for free and the only person who volunteered. Anyway, here is Lester P. to answer your questions about anything . . .

Lester, my doctor says I need to work off 100 pound of winter blubber. How do I get motivated to exercise?

When your belt no longer extends around your waist without the aid of a ratchet tie down or you recently had to ice down your arm after reaching for the TV remote, it is time to get fit. The morning is the best time because your brain is only at -10 percent working capacity and you are least likely to talk yourself out of it. Your motivation can be that there is a big breakfast of biscuits and gravy waiting for you after you finish half a push-up. If you are working out in the basement, the going up and down the stairway once is a complete exercise itself.

But how do I get up if my brain is not working real good?

Got to bed in burlap underwear. You can't wait to get up in the morning.

When is spring weather gonna finally show up?
September 15th, about a week before Fall.

I accidentally emailed my boss, instead of my best friend Bubba, an uncomplimentary photo of myself during a pool party. What should I do and expect on Monday?

You have done quite enough but it might be a good idea to delete your boss's email address. You know what to expect on Monday. On Tuesday, check out our employment opportunities on page 9.

How do I fill out my basketball brackets without look'in like an idiot?

Pencil in all the results and change them after each game in pen when necessary. It is foolproof. I am going on twenty years now with a perfect record. Note: When someone asks who you picked for certain games, change the subject by asking them how that exercise program is going.
